

Announcing the 2012 MOLA Conference Internship Award

The award will cover:

- MOLA-member organization librarian's conference fee
- 3 nights of conference hotel lodging

Purpose:

- To assist MOLA member librarians in the first five years of their careers who would not otherwise have the opportunity to attend the annual conference. (Past recipients of the award are not eligible to re-apply; all other librarians in the first five years of their careers may apply.)
- To acquaint newer members with MOLA and its membership.
- To provide assistance for the conference hosts.
- All efforts will be made to allow the intern to attend the majority of conference sessions.

Duties:

- The intern must be on-site Friday, May 11, 2012 by the start of early afternoon registration through the close of the conference on Monday, May 14, 2012, in New Orleans, Louisiana.
- The intern will assist conference hosts as needed. Sample duties may include preparing registration packets, staffing the registration desk, answering questions, helping with final details, etc. Some long distance aid to the conference hosts may be required. In addition, the intern may be asked to help the MOLA Secretary in the months following the conference with condensing session transcriptions.
- The intern will be asked to write an article for Marcato reflecting on the experience.

Application materials:

- 2012 Conference Internship Application
- Current résumé
- Letter of recommendation from MOLA member organization supervisor
- Statement of approximately 500 words, double-spaced, describing why you want to attend the 2012 MOLA Conference and why you would be the ideal candidate for the Conference Internship

Send application via email to: cblackmon@qf.org.qa

Application deadline: Monday, February 13, 2012

Award to be announced approximately 3 weeks thereafter.
